Mr. McCullagh's illness came on him shortly after the close of the late Republican national convention. It took the form of acute asthma, complicated with nervous depression. When he passed through the acute stage he found himself slow in recovery. His limbs had lost their vigor, his arms were numb and there were premoni-tions that the brain had come under the same shadowy spell. He would not admit that he was failing either physically or mentally, and insisted on managing his newspaper from his bedroom. All through the day he sat in his chair wrapped in blankets, re-ceived reports from his subordinates and gave them orders for the conduct of the paper.
The coroner's jury decided that Editor McCullagh's death was accidental.

TUG COMMODORE SUNK BY A SPANISH SPY.

Seventeen Men. Including Stephen Crane the Novelist, Have Reached Land-Eleven Still Unaccounted For One Died After Landing.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 4. - Seventeen men accounted for out of twenty-eight on the wrecked Cuban filibuster Commodore is the record here, with a slight chance of seven more yet alive. Five men came ashore at Daytona yesterday—Captain Murphy, Stephen Crane, the novelist, the cook and two sailors. One of the latter, William Higgins of Rhode Island, died soon after reaching land from the effects of the high surf. His family live in Boston. One of the survivors gives the following graphic details:

"The tug sank at 7 o'clock Saturday morning, twenty miles off New Smyrna. All the Americans on board remained till the last moment. A traitor in Spanish pay was the cause of the leak. He will be found and dealt with later. The leak was discovered at about 3 a.m. The pumps would not work long, though they did good serv-ice for a while. Finding that the water gained on us, the captain called all hands and the vessel was turned shoreward. As she still continued to sink, two boatloads of Cubans, twelve men in all, were first sent off. One boat containing six men, was capsized, and and I am afraid that the men were lost. One of the lifeboats containing nine men was swamped and a hastily constructed raft was made up from materials thrown to them and they then disappeared from our sight.

"Captain Murphy, Stephen Crane. the newspaper man, Higgins, myself and one other sailor took to the ten-foot dingy at the last moment. We tried to save the men in the water around us, but the heavy seas and blinding winds swept them from us. The spray was so thick that we could do nothing. It required all our efforts to keep our small boat right side up. For twenty-four hours we battled with the heavy sea, constantly bailing, and at last land was sighted. As we at-tempted to land, the wind drove us into the breakers and in an instant the boat was overturned and we were struggling for life. For an hour we battled for life, and then managed to crawl out on the sands almost dead."
